Die folgende Bibliographie geht zurück auf eine bibliographische Liste, die im Rahmen der AG „Animation“ der Gesellschaft für Medienwissenschaft entstanden ist. Ihre Fortschreibung ist, ebenso wie die Erarbeitung einer Bibliographie der Aufsatzliteratur zum Animationsfilm, weiterhin ein Projekt der AG. Um zur laufenden Aktualisierung der Forschungsliteratur beizutragen, nehmen Sie bitte Kontakt über die Homepage der AG auf: <http://ag-animation.de/>.

Die Bibliographie bemüht sich darum, das monographische Schrifttum zu allen Formen der Animation im Film zusammenzutragen. In einigen Feldern kann die Liste nur einen ersten Eindruck der vorliegenden Arbeiten versammeln (z.B. in den Bereichen Computeranimation, medienpädagogische Überlegungen). Und auch die selbständigen Arbeiten zu einzelnen Animatoren (wie z.B. Walt Disney) können keine vollständige Dokumentation der Schriften sein – eine genauere Aufschlüsselung wird Personalbibliographien zu einzelnen Filmemachern des Animationsfilms (einschließlich der Biographien, Kataloge und Broschüren) vorbehalten bleiben.

Stets galt es, abweichende Auflagen und auch Übersetzungen zu dokumentieren. Für eine ganze Reihe von Titeln wurde zudem eine Kurzdarstellung des Inhalts angestrebt. Einige Titel konnten nicht mit Sicherheit bibliographisch nachgewiesen werden; sie sind durch ein vorangestelltes ° gekennzeichnet.

Compendium on the subject of animation. The project brings together materials from experimental and non-commercial domains; it looks at the use of the medium of animation and presents new critical receptions within high and low cultural and artistic production. It traces questions of a time image, the doubling that is integral to image formation, and notions of territorial and urban constructions within the discourse of animation history.

Includes conversations with artists, architects and researchers Takehito Deguchi, Koji Yamamura, Masaki Fujihata, Stephen Wilson, Yoshiharu Tsukamoto, Kenta Kishi, Saki Satom, Chikara Matsumoto, Naoyuki Tsuji, Hiromitsu Murakami, Takahiro Hayakawa and Toshimaru Nakamura address specific dimensions of Japanese animation, and make the claim for a structural coherence between animation and geographical, institutional and social ideas. In this duality of content and time, the book becomes a multilayered object. The format of the compendium - bookwork and map at once - enables a virtual journey in which the reader travels across various realms of a focused study.

Hooks uses basic acting theory to explain everything from character movement and facial expressions to interaction and scene construction. Just as acting on film and on stage are very different disciplines, so is the use of acting theory in creating an animated character, scene or story. Acting for Animators is full of essential craft tips from an acting master.

Murray, Robin L. / Heuman, Joseph K.: That's All Folks? Ecocritical Readings of American Animated Features. Lincoln, NE: University of Nebraska Press 2011, 296 S.

Although some credit the environmental movement of the 1970s, with its profound impact on children's television programs and movies, for paving the way for later eco-films, the history of environmental expression in animated film reaches much further back in American history, as That's All Folks? makes clear. Countering the view that the contemporary environmental movement—and the cartoons it influenced—came to life in the 1960s, Robin L. Murray and Joseph K. Heumann reveal how environmentalism was already a growing concern in animated films of the 1930s, 1940s, and 1950s. From Felix the Cat cartoons to Disney's beloved Bambi to Pixar's Wall-E and James Cameron's Avatar, this volume shows how animated features with environmental themes are moneymakers on multiple levels—particularly as broad-based family entertainment and conveyors of consumer products. Only Ralph Bakshi's X-rated Fritz the Cat and R-rated Heavy Traffic and Coonskin, with their violent, dystopic representation of urban environments, avoid this total immersion in an anti-environmental consumer market. Showing us enviro-toons in their cultural and historical contexts, this book offers fresh insights into the changing perceptions of the relationship between humans and the environment and a new understanding of environmental and animated cinema.

Drawing on the author's notes and discussions with filmmakers, this article provides a glimpse into the internal process of temp scoring in computer-animated feature film, and analyses temp and final music. Attention is given to the collaborative process, music selection, intertextuality and authorship, as well as insight into possible ideological comparisons with final score.

In the first in-depth examination of music written for Hollywood animated cartoons of the 1930s through the 1950s, Daniel Goldmark provides a brilliant account of the enormous creative effort that went into setting cartoons to music and shows how this effort shaped the characters and stories that have become embedded in American culture. Focusing on classical music, opera, and jazz, Goldmark considers the genre and compositional style of cartoons produced by major Hollywood animation studios, including Warner Bros., MGM, Lantz, and the Fleischers. The book discusses several well-known cartoons in detail, including What's Opera, Doc?, the 1957 Warner Bros. parody of Wagner and opera that is one of the most popular cartoons ever created. Goldmark pays particular attention to the work of Carl Stalling and Scott Bradley, arguably the two most influential composers of music for theatrical cartoons. Though their musical backgrounds and approaches to scoring differed greatly, Stalling and Bradley together established a unique sound for animated comedies that has not changed in more than seventy years. Using a rich range of sources including cue sheets, scores, informal interviews, and articles from hard-to-find journals, the author evaluates how music works in an animated universe.

Digitale Doppelgänger und animierte Hollywoodstars, Fahrten durch Nervenbahnen und Hautporen, unmögliche Kameraperspektiven und Bildräume, die sich unendlich fortsetzen - in aktuellen Spielfilmen sind gefilmte Bildanteile und Computeranimationen oft ununterscheidbar miteinander verschmolzen. Eine neue Kategorie von "hybriden Bewegungsbildern" ist entstanden, die eine Bildästhetik jenseits des Effekt-Kinos hervorgebracht hat. Ihre Inszenierungsstrategien unterwandern unsere Vorstellung realistischer Darstellungen - sie beeinflussen unsere Wahrnehmung nachhaltig und prägen unsere Sicht auf die Welt mit. Das Buch verbindet die Darstellung der technischen Voraussetzungen dieser neuen Bildwelten mit einer eingehenden Untersuchung ihrer ästhetischen Implikationen. Es schließt damit eine Lücke in der wissenschaftlichen Auseinandersetzung mit der Digitalisierung der Bildproduktion.

Brown, Steven T. (ed.): Cinema anime. Critical engagements with Japanese animation. New York, NY [...]: Palgrave MacMillan 2006, viii, 248 S.

This collection charts the terrain of contemporary Japanese animation, one of the most explosive forms of visual culture to emerge at the crossroads of transnational cultural production in the last twenty-five years. The essays offer bold and insightful engagement with anime's concerns with gender identity, anxieties about body mutation and technological monstrosity, and apocalyptic fantasies. The contributors dismantle the distinction between "high" and "low" culture and offer compelling arguments for the value and importance of the study of anime and popular culture as a key link in the translation from the local to the global.

Where did Japanese animation come from, and what does it all mean? Written for fans, culture watchers, and perplexed outsiders, this is a tour of the anime me-gaverse, from older arts and manga traditions to the works of modern directors like Miyazaki and Otomo. Read about anime standbys like giant robots, samurai, furry beasts, high school heroines, and gay/girl/fanboy love--even war and reincarnation, plus all of anime's major themes, styles, and conventions.

Presents a foundational theory of animation and what it reveals about our relationship to technology. The Anime Machine defines the visual characteristics of anime and the meanings generated by those specifically "animetic" effects—the multiplanar image, the distributive field of vision, exploded projection, modulation, and other techniques of character animation—through close analysis of major films and television series, studios, animators, and directors, as well as Japanese theories of animation. Lamarre first addresses the technology of anime: the cells on which the images are drawn, the animation stand at which the animator works, the layers of drawings in a frame, the techniques of drawing and blurring lines, how characters are made to move. He then examines foundational works of anime, including the films and television series of Miyazaki Hayao and Anno Hideaki, the multimedia art of Murakami Takashi, and CLAMP's manga and anime adaptations, to illuminate the profound connections between animators, characters, spectators, and technology. Working at the intersection of the philosophy of technology and the history of thought, Lamarre explores how anime and its related media entail material orientations and demonstrates concretely how the "animetic machine" encourages a specific approach to thinking about technology and opens new ways for understanding our place in the technologized world around us.

Art film in Sweden from early cinema to the digital age -- This first-ever study of Swedish experimental film represents the results of a Swedish Research Council initiative in 2006-2008. The essays address the institutions, filmmakers, and films important to the history of experimental film in Sweden, and place this history in larger artistic and socio-cultural contexts. The authors look at the work of the Independent Film Group, regional Fluxus groups, E.A.T., and figures such as Viking Eggeling, Rune Hagberg, Pontus Hultén, Öyvind Fahlström, Leo Reis, Bo Jonsson, and Åke Karlung.

Die zwanzig Schweizer Filmschaffenden, die der Band vorstellt, stehen für die Vielfalt und die Eigenständigkeit des heutigen Schaffens, vom experimentellen Kurzfilm bis zum Werbespot, vom Autorenkurzfilm bis zur Fernsehserie, vom Kinofilm bis zur Animation in der Kunst. Ähnlich vielfältig sind die Techniken, mit denen sie arbeiten: vom klassischen Zeichentrick über Knetanimation, Lege-, Sach- und Puppentrick bis zur Computeranimation. Ein Schwerpunkt ist die Dokumentation der Produktion: Zum einen werden die verschiedenen Arbeitsschritte in den unterschiedlichsten Techniken dokumentiert, von ersten Skizzen und Modellen über Storyboards bis hin zum endgültigen Filmbild. Zum anderen vermitteln detaillierte Bildsequenzen einen guten Eindruck von Erzählweise, Dramaturgie, Bildsprache, Inhalten und Atmosphären in den wichtigsten Werken der einzelnen Filmschaffenden.

Between the classic films of Walt Disney in the 1940s and the televised cartoon revolution of the 1960s was a critical period in the history of animation. Amid Amidi, of the influential Animation Blast magazine and CartoonBrew blog, charts the evolution of the modern style in animation, which largely discarded the 'lifelike' aesthetic for a more graphic and often abstract approach. Abundantly found in commercials, industrial and educational films, fair and expo infotainment, and more, this quickly popular cartoon modernism shared much with the painting and graphic design movements of the era. Showcasing hundreds of rare and forgotten sketches, model boards, cels, and film stills, Cartoon Modern is a thoroughly researched, eye-popping, and delightful account of a vital decade of animation design.

Über das Frauenbild in Disney-Filmen, 1937-2004. Re-examines the notion that Disney heroines are rewarded for passivity. Davis proceeds from the assumption that, in their representations of femininity, Disney films both reflected and helped shape the attitudes of the wider society, both at the time of their first release and subsequently. Analyzing the construction of (mainly human) female characters in the animated films of the Walt Disney Studio between 1937 and 2001, she attempts to establish the extent to which these characterizations were shaped by wider popular stereotypes. Davis argues that it is within the most constructed of all moving images of the female form--the heroine of the animated film--that the most telling aspects of Woman as the subject of Hollywood iconography and cultural ideas of American womanhood are to be found.

Oskar Fischinger is one of the greatest artists of the 20th century, embracing the abstraction that became the major art movement of that century, and exploring the new technology of the cinema to open abstract painting into a new Visual Music that performs in liquid time. If he is less well known than some of the other major artists, it is precisely because he was buffeted about by the wars, Nazism, the communist witch-hunts and other phenomena of his century.

Jensen, Paul M.: The men who made the monsters. New York: Twayne / London: Prentice Hall 1996, xii, 401 S. (Twayne's filmmakers series.).

Inhalt: In the Men Who Made the Monsters, Paul Jensen chronicles the careers of five men who made shamelessly scary, enjoyable, and sometimes classic films: James Whale (whose films include Frankenstein, 1931, and The Invisible Man, 1933), Willis O'Brien (King Kong, 1933; Mighty Joe Young, 1949), Ray Harryhausen (The 7th Voyage of Sinbad, 1958; Jason and the Argonauts, 1963), Terence Fisher (Dracula, 1958; Frankenstein Must Be Destroyed, 1969), and Freddie Francis (The Skull, 1965; Tales That Witness Madness, 1973). Usually working within tight budgets and short production schedules, these three directors (Whale, Fisher, Francis) and two masters of special effects (O'Brien, Harryhausen) turned out films that proved them to be not only skillful craftsmen but artists. In the inhuman, the unearthly, the monstrous, they found and explored the depths of our most human fears and fascinations.

Drawing on hitherto unseen archival material and interviews, "They Thought It Was a Marvel" sketches an unforgettable portrait of British pioneer filmmaker Arthur Melbourne-Cooper. Tjitte de Vries and Ati Mul sift through several of Melbourne-Cooper's films, emphasizing his contributions to early cinema while simultaneously arguing their case that Melbourne-Cooper's Matches Appeal is the first animated film. Accompanying the book is a DVD that features the six surviving animated films made by Melbourne-Cooper.

Quay Bros.

Buchan, Suzanne: The Quay Brothers: Into a Metaphysical Playroom. Minneapolis, MN: University of Minnesota Press, 2011, 296 S.

The complex, special power of the Quay Brothers' puppet animation poetics. This work is the first thorough analysis of the creative oeuvre of the Quay Brothers. Known for their animation shorts that rely on puppetry, miniatures, and stop-motion techniques, their fiercely idiosyncratic films are fertile fields for Suzanne Buchan's engaging descriptions and provocative insights into the Quays' art and into the art of independent puppet animation. Buchan's aesthetic investigation stems from extensive access to the Quay Brothers' artistic practices and work, which spans animation and live-action film, stage design, and illustration. She also draws on a long acquaintance with them and on interviews with collaborators essential to their productions, as well as archival sources. Discussions of their films' literary origins, space, puppets, montage, and the often-overlooked world of sound and music in animation shed new light on the expressive world that the Quay Brothers generate from their materials to create the poetic alchemy of their films. At once a biography of the Quays' artistic trajectory and a detailed examination of one of their best-known films, Street of Crocodiles, this book goes further and provides interdisciplinary methodologies and tools for the analysis of animation.

In this thesis in which Émile Reynaud (1844-1918) is presented as the inventor of motion painting, three years before the creation of cinema, a definition of motion painting is arrived at based on five necessary criteria which have been found to be : 1) The overall presence of texture in the paint applied directly to the support by the artist himself (thereby excluding films painted for colouring effects or digital colorization in animation films) 2) Movement inseparable from time and space (scrolling) 3) Shapes and contours painted not delineated by drawn lines as in cartoons 4) A painterly narrative different from that in a cinema film 5) The evidence of the artist's creative process in the spatial presentation of his work including its projection and the potential exhibition of various elements of his preparatory work Motion painting is unsuited to the usual distribution circuits of the animation film industry and therefore given little exposure. Motion painting which combines cinema, painting and installation readily finds a place in venues presenting contemporary art and its mixed media techniques.

Abstract: In this thesis I will analyze and discuss the work of renowned director Jan Švankmajer. Specifically, I will examine how director Jan Švankmajer's representation of the body creates a metaphorical language. In addition, I will address what meaning can be gathered from, or made apparent through the commentary of the body's language and discuss the significance of the socio-political implications. Prior to my discussion of Švankmajer's work I will give a concise socio-political history of the Czech Republic from 1968-1994; this discussion will provide a framework for the subsequent analyses. In order to provide support for my argument, I will discuss the relationship between Švankmajer's work and Michael Foucault's theory of the „body politic“, Patrick Fuery's theory of the „cinematized body“ and Mikhail Bakhtin's theory of the image of the grotesque body. After discussing the implication of these theories I will discuss three of Švankmajer's films in order to specifically address the ability of the grotesque body to subvert discourses of power and how the socio-cultural environment has an impact on Švankmajer's choice of body representation. The films I discuss include Dimensions of Dialogue (1982), Food (1992) and Faust (1994).

L'Harmattan 2010, 249 S. (Cinéma d'animations.).

Extrait de Thèse de doctorat (Cinéma), Université Rennes 2, 2007, sous le titre: Scénographie et cinématographie du dessin animé: de Toei à Ghibli, 1968-1988, le parti du réalisme de Isao Takahata et Hayao Miyazaki.

Ce premier volume consacré aux créateurs du Studio Ghibli constitue un triple pari: s'intéresser à Takahata, le moins connu des deux auteurs, qui fit pourtant basculer le dessin animé de long métrage dans la modernité (Hols [Horus], prince du soleil), permettre aux amateurs d'animation d'apprécier le travail de mise en scène. Enfin, de considérer ces artistes en tant que cinéastes à part entière.

Hans Richter begleitete den Aufbruch der historischen Avantgardebewegung von Anfang an als Maler, Filmmacher, Theoretiker und Historiograph. 1947 gelang es ihm, im US-amerikanischen Exil den Film Dreams That Money Can Buy zu realisieren, der einen neuen Blick auf Gewesenes und Gewordenes wirft. Beteiligt an diesem Projekt waren berühmte Avantgardisten wie Max Ernst, Fernand Léger, Man Ray, Marcel Duchamp und Alexander Calder. Ausgehend von ihren künstlerischen Ideen und Werken, inszeniert im Rahmen von Traumsequenzen, reflektiert Richter den produktiven Zusammenhang von Traum und Kunst, insbesondere Film. Seine Überlegungen stehen in einem dichten Netz von Bezügen zur avantgardistischen Kunst, zeitgenössischen Filmtheorie, psychoanalytischen Theorie und Zeitgeschichte.

Since first joining forces as a pair of young animators, Bill Hanna and Joe Barbera won the hearts of more than three generations. The duo won seven Academy awards at MGM during the golden age of the Hollywood cartoon, and still, decades later, their best-loved characters, having made their debut in television's early days, are household names. Today, it is not uncommon for three generations to share the joy of Hanna-Barbera's creations, including such classics as Huckleberry Hound, Tom and Jerry, Scooby-Doo, Yogi Bear, The Flintstones, The Jetsons, Jonny Quest, Magilla Gorilla, Top Cat, and Space Ghost.
